

Re: gas-oil ratio

Bill.Lehr o Marcia K McNutt
:

06/05/2010 08:17 PM

---

History: This message has been replied to.

---

Marcia,

I think that Paul Bommer and Juan Lasheras have developed analysis that shows a higher oil content and I am told there are reasons to think that the cap does preferentially sample gas.

Interesting point for the Monday discussion.

Bill

----- Original Message -----

From: Marcia K McNutt <mcnutt@usgs.gov>

Date: Saturday, June 5, 2010 11:16 am

Subject: gas-oil ratio

To: Bill.Lehr@noaa.gov

> With the 2100/1 I get that the gas/oil ratio we should be using is 41% > oil, 59% gas. That should be a good number, unless there is something > weird about the cap preferentially sampling more of one or the other, > which I think unlikely but haven't thought a lot about it.
> Marcia