

You're Invited!

USGS Open House 2007

Dig the Earth ? Discover Our Science!

Explore more than 125 years of earth science at the U.S. Geological Survey Open House on Saturday November 3, 2007. Exhibits, demonstrations, hands-on activities and live entertainment will introduce the whole family to the wonders of science.

Talk to world-class USGS scientists and learn about earthquakes, volcanoes, water quality, climate change, invasive species, and mapping the Earth. See alligators, pan for gold and check out simulated hurricanes. Experience earth science in 3-D, create paintings using fish and take a trek through time looking at fascinating fossils. Don't miss this opportunity to experience these activities and more! Great resource materials are available for teachers.

Admission and parking are free. Food and beverages for sale.
Most activities indoors — Event will take place rain or shine.

Where: USGS National Center
12201 Sunrise Valley Drive
Reston, VA 20192

When: Saturday, November 3, 2007
10:00 a.m. – 5:00 p.m.

Directions to the National Center: <http://www.usgs.gov/visitors/directions.html>

